

Not-for-Profit Experience

Axis Planning & Development brings a client's perspective to our approach. Our personal sense of commitment and ownership means that you get more than just a completed assignment — you receive the long term value of a project or building that supports your financial goals.

Axis highly regards the not-for-profit projects we have completed and the organizations we have worked with and assisted.

Working with not-for-profit organizations typically requires regular communication and outreach to key stakeholders which we are familiar and comfortable with. We appreciate the diversity of project needs and are passionate about working with non-profits and helping the organization and those they serve succeed.

We hold seats on various not-for-profit Boards directly related to helping the homeless, those in need, and those at risk such as women and children. For over 10 years, we have advised not-for-profit organizations on various asset management, project, and construction needs.
